

Business Support for the Postal Service Reform Act of 2021

“We strongly support Section 202 which requires the Postal Service to continue its decades’ long practice of delivering mail and packages together at least six days a week in an integrated delivery network. This section will keep package prices reasonable by allowing the Postal Service to pass on to customers cost efficiencies realized by delivering mail and packages together, ensuring continued price competition across the package delivery industry.” – Michael Dabbs, Head of Americas Government Relations

“CVS Health relies on the U.S. Postal Service to deliver millions of prescription medications each year to locations ranging from remote to urban and every address in-between. Our customers rely on us for affordable and reliable delivery. For this reason, we support this legislation which improves the financial stability of the U.S. Postal Service and ensures the continuation of delivering mail and packages together at least six days a week through an integrated delivery network.” – Melissa Schulman, Senior Vice President, Government Affairs and Public Policy

“The National Retail Federation commends your bipartisan leadership in the creation of the Postal Service Reform Act of 2021. This essential legislation will ensure the Postal Service can continue to serve as a critical component of America’s infrastructure, bringing goods, supplies, medicines and more to every address in America reliably and affordably. Now, more than ever, the Postal Service acts as a lifeline to many Americans, delivering essential goods during the global health crisis.” – David French, Senior Vice President, Government Relations

“After Hurricane Sandy wreaked extensive damage to our neighborhood, the first person that made it to my family’s home was our letter carrier, perhaps a perfect symbol for the importance of the USPS and how it is deeply woven into the fabric of our society and our history. I think it’s critical we do what is necessary to weave the USPS into our future as well. Let’s pass the Postal Service Reform Act of 2021. – Marc Lautenbach, CEO

“OSM Worldwide relies on the Postal Service to affordably deliver to the most remote locations, core urban areas, and every address in-between. Because of companies like ours, the Postal Service’s package delivery business is growing and profitable. We look forward to continuing to use the Postal Service to deliver packages to our customers, 6-days a week at a reasonable price.” – Gaston Curk, CEO

“At Amazon, we like to think of the USPS as our first and oldest business partner. Today, we work hand-in-hand with the USPS to provide excellent service and innovate for our customers. Our partnership is mutually beneficial. Experts and impartial regulators have consistently recognized the USPS’s partnerships with companies, like Amazon, as a bright spot of growth and profitability for the agency. Notably, in 2021 packages contributed over $13 billion in profit for the USPS. We are proud of our partnership with the USPS and plan to continue working with the agency to deliver for our customers in the future.” – Brian Huseman, Vice President, Public Policy

“Because of companies like ours, the Postal Service’s package delivery business is growing and profitable. We look forward to continuing to use the Postal Service to deliver packages to our customers, 6-days a week at a reasonable price.” Cap’n Bjorn Borstelmann, CEO, Pirate Ship LLC

“More than 500 million International Paper boxes traveled through USPS last year and our paper created more than 31 billion pieces of mail. Because our customers rely on a sustainable and affordable U.S. Postal Service as a supply chain partner, International Paper strongly supports the Postal Service Reform Act. The bill will strengthen USPS’s balance sheet and position them well to serve customers for the long-term.” -- Chris Keulman, Vice President, Global Government Relations

“The USPS and other national mail and shipping carriers are vital to delivering needed medications to America’s patients, and our PBM-member companies value the particular role of the USPS in assuring the reliability and affordability of mail-service pharmacy. To be sure, the USPS is critical to affordable and timely mail-service pharmacy operations, we believe America’s postal service should be adequately funded and well-functioning.” – JC Scott, President and CEO
